

Hello, my name's Herb Miller
I am a WordPress fan
I'd like to tell you how I write in the only way I can

Things, they are much simpler now I've just to cast a spell and the Gutenberg block editor creates H T M L

I used to write HTML
but now my content rocks ever since WordPress "Bebo" - 5
I've been constructing blocks.

If I'm writing blogs
I reckon more than half the blocks that I will use will be the paragraph

I can style them left or right with bold and i-tal-ics and introduce hypertext links right into the mix.

A dropcap at the start,
colour from behind and varying sized fonts that my readers may not mind.

But if I'm writing lots to break up what you're reading I won't forget to use an in-form-a-tive heading.

A simple way to create content that I don't want to be missed Is to write my sentences in an unordered list

pictures are 1,000 words jpegs are all the rage
So in between the wordy bits
I use a nice image.

So you like words and images
I wonder what comes next You won't be all that surprised then by Media and Text.

Not everybody reads that quick and even the boy racer will welcome a vertical gap so why not use a spacer.

some things you need to see right now and some you might read later time to make use of the block that's called the separator.

I may want to point my readers to something I have read a good way to achieve this is to use an embed.

So I've got a table.
It appears to me
the way that I'd present it straight from the CSV.

And now I've got this content
but it looks a mess I'd love to be able to style it with some inline CSS

A little bit of source code's much easier to see when it's syntax highlighted with that tool that's called GeSHi

So I need to give directions
I don't get in a flap
I give them my Address and a fancy Google Map

If you want to contact me
Pretty much the norm
There are over 20 plugins that help me build the form

I don't punish my visitors
By brandishing the birch I let them find things easily by offering a Search

A countdown timer's all I need to let you know just when something is going to happen or how long it's been since then

When I want to make you act a better there is nuttin'
than a super duper, you can't bend it call to action button.

If I want you to download stuff it should only take a while to realise the block to use is simply labelled File.

Many blocks are similar to choose we all take sides
But some are really unique
For example UK Tides

You all may have noticed I could have done no worse than to write this little poem in the block entitled Verse

Creativity is paramount
That's obvious to me
I couldn't wait to write therefore Magnetic Poetry

... I could say that my favourite block
Is taken from this set
The truth is that it's out there
I just haven't found it yet.

(C) Herb Miller 2019

Here's another entry
It came in rather late My favourite's not a block at all
It's a new post template

The one that's truly horrid
In columns it's a crock
I use shortcodes all the time
But avoid the shortcode block.